Things are getting more expensive these days. As utility bills, food costs and pump prices go up, many of us are looking for free and inexpensive entertainment options to help with the family budget. There are still many ways in Miami that you can have a good time without putting a dent in your bank account. 01 of the 06 Greater Miami Convention and visitors to the Miami Beaches Bureau offer a great opportunity to get some exercise or just enjoy some time in the sun! I take a look at some of my favorite beaches, including a few less used places where you can avoid the tourist crowds. Best of all, most beaches don't have an entrance fee! 02 of 06 With 1.5 million acres of marshes, saw grass prairie and subtropical jungle, Everglades National Park is one of the most unusual public parks in the United States. Located on the southern tip of Florida, the park is home to 14 rare and endangered species, including the American Crocodile, Florida Panther and West Indian Manatee. Much of the park is primitive, explored only by adventurers and explorers - but visitors have ample opportunities for walking, camping and canoeing. Entry is only $10 per car. 03 of the 06 Greater Miami Convention and visitors to the Miami Metrozoo Bureau are fast becoming one of the best zoos in the country. Its climate allows it to keep a wide range of animals from Asia, Australia and Africa like no other zoo in the country. One of the first free noting zoos in the country, exhibits completely without cages. Beasts are grouped according to their geographical territory and animals that live together peacefully in the wild are placed in exhibits together. 04 of 06 Florida Fisherman's Paradise! From Miami to the Florida Keys, we have some of the best salt water and freshwater fish spots in the world. Best of all, fishing is always free for children and is free for everyone else on free weekend fishing. Fishing on other days requires an annual fishing license priced at $13.50. But even if you're not staying at the hotel, you can treat yourself to a day of sun and surfing by booking one of the hotel's luxury SOAK cabins. Located by the pool, the cabins look like miniature hotel rooms and have full marble bathrooms with glass showers, air conditioning, iPads, flat-screen TVs and butlers who arrive at misty guests with Evian and ply them with smoothies, fruit and mojitos. To book one, contact loewshotels.com. 2 of 5 With its soothing zen interior, the restaurant is setai-designed by architect Jean-Michel Gathy and decorator Jaya Ibrahim is easily one of the most beautiful spaces in Miami. With his latest chef, Mathias Gervais (Joel Robushon's protege), Setai has a menu worthy of his surroundings. It's fun to watch the chef's team at work in the restaurant's extensive exhibition kitchen, which features a Spanish-style plancha used to create such Mediterranean dishes as pan-seared Florida prickly lobster and Gamberoni St. Remo. Or book Saigon Gimlet and retreat to the swanky Setai courtyard, an oasis of serene pools, square banquets and Asian antiques. thesetaihotel.com for a more casual meal in Miami Design District, try Harry's Pizzeria (harryspizzeria.tumblr.com) from the team behind Michael Genuine. The laid-back restaurant has a wood-burning brick hearth that turns out to be a perfectly charred thin crust of pizza. Order fries and take a look at the Ingredient Wall installation, designed by a team of local artists Friends With You. 3 of 5 As the House of Art of Basel-Miami Beach, this city has become the top international mecca of art. Now he has a world-class art museum to match his reputation. The Perez Miami Art Museum (PAMM), which opened last January, is a must-use for both its adventurous contemporary programming art and for its stunning new building, designed by Swiss architects Herzog de Meuron. Located in downtown Miami, the three-bedroom building has a wrap veranda overlooking Biscayne Bay and dramatic vertical hanging gardens designed by botanist Patrick Blanc. Permanent and The collection includes about 1,300 contemporary and contemporary works, including Mark Dion's South Florida Wildlife Rescue Group: Mobile Lab, a quirky piece consisting of yellow yellow equipped to explore the everglades environment. Now Playing: Show Of Imaginary Landscapes of Haitian Origin, Miami-based artist Edward Duval-Carrie (until August 31). pamm.org 4 out of 5 I'm a big fan of the work of the late architect Morris Lapidus, who transformed midcentury Miami with neo-baroque masterpieces like Fontainebleau and Eden Rock hotels. The Ritz-Carlton, South Beach (ritzcarlton.com) is located in the classic 1953 Art Moderne Lapidus, which has been meticulously restored and updated with amenities such as a first-class spa and a chic lobby bar. The owner, Diane Lowenstein, also runs an art gallery in Miami's booming Wynwood Arts District (dianalowensteingallery.com). She made art the center of the hotel's attention. Art concierge, Noel Lanza (artist himself) can prepare personalized Art Basel-Miami Beach itineraries for guests who need help navigating the show. Ask him to point to the hotel's artwork, which range from the dramatic Anthony Topi in the lobby bar to the Miros couple in the lobby, along with new works by Lowenstein artists such as Jose Bechara and Michael Loveland. 5 of Miami's five books and books has several locations, but my favorite is one in the historic Sterling Building on Lincoln Road Mall, a pedestrian-only road that was also designed by Lapidus (which famously said: The car never bought anything.) tucked away behind its own cafe and courtyard, this quirky bookstore consists of a series of cozy rooms filled with everything from fiction to kindergarten. Best of all, it stocks one of the most extensive collections of books dedicated to art, design, architecture and fashion that you are likely to find anywhere. The store is located at 927 Lincoln Road.
